

 SkyTuned Preview — Logo header with dark band #0a0a0f

The logo (logo-space-v2.jpg, black corners) blends seamlessly into the dark band.

Section headers use #0f172a (dark navy/slate) — not gold.

Gold #c9a84c is used only for accent lines and dividers.

 TODAY'S LEAD Blue Origin's New Glenn Explosion — Aftermath & Fallout

The space world is still processing Thursday night's catastrophic New Glenn explosion during a static fire test at Cape Canaveral. LC-36 sustained heavy damage, and the vehicle — Blue Origin's flagship heavy lifter — is completely destroyed. Jeff Bezos called it a "very rough day" and vowed to rebuild.

 MISSION CONTROL LAUNCHES

- ULA Atlas V — Launched 29 Kuiper satellites 24 hours after New Glenn explosion
- SpaceX Falcon 9 — Starlink 11-3 launch from Vandenberg tonight at 10:47 PM ET

 SCIENCE SATURDAY

DEEP DIVE: BREAKTHROUGH DISCOVERIES

James Webb Telescope Spots Potential Biosignatures on Exoplanet K2-18b TONIGHT'S SKY

- 🌙 Waxing Gibbous Moon — 99% illuminated, visible all night
- 🪐 Saturn — Shining at magnitude 1.1 in Aquarius, visible after midnight
- 🔴 Mars — Fading but still visible in Gemini after sunset

⚡ SPACE WEATHER

Kp index is 3 (quiet), solar wind speed is 380 km/s with a mild coronal hole stream. Aurora likely visible only at high latitudes tonight (northern Canada, Scandinavia). No significant solar flares reported in the last 24 hours.
